

Teach this triple truth to all: A generous heart, kind speech, and a life of service and compassion are the things which renew humanity."... Gautam Buddha

This particular quote seemed to be rejuvenating our lives to a greater extent due to the prolific recognition which the institute has granted in us to realize our truth well in line with the specific club which has so much of opportunities and well-being in it self for the others.

The efforts of shaping up of our goal to redefine the awareness and enlightening the mass about the need and the attached realization which we had dreamt of in order to improvise and pour some essence in the lives and dreams of those who have been secluded from the basic course of life seemed to be touching the point of accomplishments and successfully marking its track well on the 20th of this month with our very own NGO Fair which had been immensely supported and successfully implemented by our respected institute IILM for it be the hallmark which it remains to be after the days success along with our efforts and ways. The journey started off quite well with all efforts and hard work of our coordinators representing ICCHA who had been actively spreeing around in order to mark up some essential contributions from the various NGO's working around for the respective cause. We were highly enthralled and impressed by the involvement of various NGO's like Maximizing Employment to Secure Handicap (MESH), Tatsat, Sign Foundation and Alcoholics Anonymous who helped us enormously in setting up our objectives and plans well by their set of exhibition in terms of themes and awareness which were brightened up further with some essential offerings.

At a very initial stage, our involvement in going to distant places for the purpose of inviting our respective NGO's marked itself with high level of excitement and interest. Though things went slightly hard on us when persuasion rose on some of them to be a part of this movement, but for others we had an overwhelming response with loads of opportunities arriving along with it as they got the bunch of motivating factors fighting against these adversaries and thus helping them in shaping up their respective objectives for good life for our people. Specifically talking about some of us who have been actively participating towards the movement called Roshni, it was a great deal of excitement and fun when opportunity led us to the fact of driving the kids to the extent of creativity and innovation by motivating their expertise in making some beautiful articles and handicraft materials. It truly had some bright colors and incredible design and concept which those kids were ready with thus proving their heights of imagination and blissfulness. We helped them in shaping up their effort well. On the other side of the preparation, our other coordinators were busy designing the respective badges and the posters which we had to present respectively towards the masses for the purpose of awareness and highlighting the significance attached to it. With substantial number of meetings and persistent planning, our goals seemed to be touching the levels of high accomplishments and success as every time we met, we harnessed some innovative thoughts to improvise on our Fair. The first meeting took us on a very high note where the essence seemed to be unfolded regarding the experience and the exposure which the club had received in terms of the NGO Fair as witnessed last year. Along with that it included the core significance of the club and the expectation from our side being the new channel leaders. All these factors stood very high in ourselves which led to the ordering of the respective activities which the club had wished to be formulated at our end.

19th of October 2010 proved to be very essential for all of us as everybody was busy nurturing the finishing acts and lines which had to be exhibited distinctively the next day. A very late stay back and counting on every part of the fair led to a mixed bag of all good feelings which involved a lot of excitement with a little ingredient of pure nervousness, thus driving us towards the necessary reiteration on each and every part and activity which needed to be showcased and put forward for the next day towards the successful implementation. It came up to be a satisfactory day when we all were returning home with our fingers crossed and with those pair of supportive and motivating yet caring eyes for each other and with some last minute thoughts and essentialities which can make the program even fairer as to whatever were planned. The true spirit of team work and unification got realized when all our efforts seemed to be check listed and touching the final grounds towards the required aspirations.

From finding places to chalk the tents out and negotiating with the vendors till marking boundaries for the kids to move the respective paint brushes and preparing them for their dreams and imaginations, every piece of activity involved high level of adrenalin rush and a sigh of relief as breathed for it. The rush went up stronger as every component which we had thought of, seemed shaping up towards the perfect curvature whether it was our poster or our catalogues.

20th October 2010 marked itself to be a very prosperous day for each of us. The tasks line-ups were taken care off well in time with some hands of perfection and additions on it to make it look even more vibrant and colorful. It started off on a very positive note with all the coordinators escorting the respective NGO's who were invited to share their contributions towards the revival for their respective themes and efforts which they were focusing on in order to provide with the brighter side to the people living around along with them. Decorating the institute by putting up the banners, posters and with those colorful floor designs took every part of our effort to a different level. With some last minute touch-up and recollecting over the facts of responsibilities for some essential invitations, the fair opened to all with high level of participation and zeal at 11:15 am. Everybody seemed to be more responsive and alert with every sphere of good deliverance. We all were representing ourselves worthy of the theme and the significant purpose with that ethnic Indian attire of ours. The fair included food and game stalls, all the participating NGO's and most essentially our belief and efforts with careful coordination and great deal of expectations amongst each of us to make it a grand success. The photography club came up with an immense support to us by lending up with some good moments and capturings which spell its cast amongst each of us with their respective theme of "Art and Street" and Emotions respectively. Both these moods dealt with a strong sense of influence and impressions which was very complimenting and motivational in its own ways working hard and positive towards the respective efforts.

Things turned out to be even better when our fellow coordinators proposed to stage a dance for the Roshni kids who were exhibited on the final day with lot of exuberance and aplomb.
